The News.

Last night the telegraph brought us Liverpool advices to the Blst, by the arrival of s Steam propeller, (probably the Indian Empire.) A project has been started in Paris, having for its object the connection of China with Europe by telegraph. This great project, if carried out, will be second only in importance to the Atlantic Telegraph. .We have also news by the steem ships City of Baltimore and North Star. A full synopsis or both the steamers news will be found in our telegraph columns. No particular change is spoken of in the foreign markets -The London Times says that the President's message to the Queen, containing 99 words, was sont over the cable in 69 minutes. An extensive conspiracy had been discovered in Austria against the government, in which boys from 12 o 15 years of age were connected. The probability of an expedition against Madagescar by England and France, is talked of. Atlantic Telegraph shares were rapidly advancing. It is eaid that previous to the prorogation, the House of Commons ordered the return of Vancouver's Island from the Hudson Bay, Company to the crowc. A vessel is to be put on the route between Liverpool and British Columbia. The Government are going to send a corps of Engineers to Columbia, to build roads and bridges, and at the same time to form a military organization. The American Propeller Abby Landon had been wrecked off the I-le of Wight. France is increasing her army. News from India indicates the success of the British troops against the saund in our evening report. By the last arriwal it will be seen that the Liverpool wheat market had advanced a trifle. The completion and opening up for business "Competition is the Tife of Business." t the La Cross and Milwaukee and the Detroit and Milwankee Railroads, both of which will become extensively traveled thoroughfares, suggerts to us a few ideas which we think dozerve consideration at the present time. Our city is rapidly becoming the center of an : P extensive system of railroad communication, from which we may hope to reap great benefit, and t the requisite facilities for the interchange of travet and trade see afterded, we need have no lear of disappointment. Notwithstanding the now polar to this place as their common center, we need the completion of one more about link to render perfect the chain of rathous communication through our midet. We refer to the necessity of a track through the city, which shall counset the several roads to such a manner than torough travel shall not be subjected to the cxperes and delay of an omnibus ride from one Danot to another.

It seems to an estirely practicable to so connect the different roads, that the cars of nacroad can run di est to the depot of another road, thereby enabling through passengers to step directly from one train to the other without expense or inconvenience. The value of such a connecting track to Milwaukee, as a city, ba comes most apparent, when we consider the great competition we have to overcome in draw. ing through our midst the tide of travel from the East and South to the North-West. This competition exists in the shape of several roads at the south of us, whose interest is to carry the business around Milwaukee. And in their attempts so to do, the operators of those roads are not slow to make the most of any argument, however er slight, against the advantages of this line.

It must be remembered that a very large pertion of the travel between the East and North-West passes, and must of necessity continue to pass through Chicago. The position of the milroads east of that place is such he to control the business to a considerable extent. And, in order that Milwankee may come in for a full Diedda, Arabia, was bombarded by the British steamer Oyclops, in consequence, it is said, of the delay of the Turkish authorities, is granting a reparation for a recent massaure there of the English Consul, and others. The Cyclops shelled the city for five days, when Ishmael Paccha, the Turkish commissioner, finally made his appearance in the palace, and promised to arrange the matter. He subsequently executed 11 of the murderer, and sent 4 to Codstantinople, to be dealt with by the Saltan. The Cyclops then took her departure. The despatch containing the shore intelligence gives no account of the extent of the damage done to Djedda by the hombarding, nor of the immediate grievance which led to it.

The clever equip which the News thus reproduces, was published in the Sentinel, six years ago, and due credit gives to the historiographer of the famous Club. Indeed, we are assured on credible authority, that in compliment to his graphic sketch of the leading members, the authority was forthwith elected an honorary member of the Jenny hind Club, "withat or ashore," and has ever since retained the most agreeable social and political relations towards that highly respectable and very powerful organization. As many of our readers may be curious to see the proceedings of Jenny Lind Club meeting, we republish them in the form furnished by the official reporter for the Club. The Yellow Fever in New Oriesna-How its Victims are Buried.

(From the Belta of August 20th.)

The cemetry of Viccent de Paul, which is situated on Louisa street, in the Third District, has been the burying-place of a large number of the vicinize of yellow fever this season. This is accounted for from the fact that the disease has been preparailing a greater degree in the has been prevailing in a greater degree in the Third District than any other portion of the city. The cametery is divided into two divisions, the lower one of which is almost destitute of vaults or tombs, and those interred there are placed, in dry weather, about a foot under ground, the lift thrown on top not more than covering the coffin. Several graves were open yesterday as pessed through, looking like obloog mud pud-dits. A few moments afterwards the remains of some poor individual were brought in, and left to the negroes to inter. Placing the rough cotto the beginns whiter. Paring the rough coin on a band car, they carried it a short distance, and placed it by the side of a hele, and then made preparations for placing it in telast roeting place. The head of the coffin was let down into the water, but of course it would not sink, into the water, but of course it would not sink, and immediately rose to the surface. It was thrust down several times rather roughly to endeavor to make it addere to the soft mud at the bottom, but it invariably-rose again.

At last it was showed in, and the spade of one of the negroes held it until the other threw in large quantities of hard mud, which served as a weight to keep the head down. One of the negroes then, while the other kept his spade on the list ond, lowered the foot and sank it in the same moner, kicking in some mud with his feet.

Correspondence of the N. Y. Tribune.

Hencow, Jone, 1883.

It was Makame de Stael, I beheve, who, on that serving Morcow, exclained: "Problet Rome Tartars." This may have been time before the destruction of that ancient city, but it would hardly apply at the present day. It its immense extent Moscow may well rival Rome, as in this respect it is compassed by no notern capital except London; but although its Asiatic character is quite as strongly marked as that of Constans thoole, it is by no means Tartar. No other city in the would presents so coempolitica and aspect.

The gilded donces of Lacknow—the pagodas of Chima—Byzantine churches—Grecim temples—palaces in the style of Versailles—hondon; but seed the respect to the contral page of Chima—Byzantine churches—Grecim temples—palaces in the style of Versailles—hondon; but seed though contages—glating American signs—boulevards, garcens, silect lanes, notring streets, open markets, Turkish bezare, French Cales, German beer-cellurs and Chinese tea-house—all are lound here, not grouped exclusively into separate cactons, but mixed and jumpied together, would be peaded and the New, areas blended and conlound here, not grouped exclusively into sepa-rate cautous, but mixed and jumpied together, norif Europe and Asia, the Past and Present, the Old World and the New, are so blended and con-rate cattons, but mixed and jumpled together, until Europe and Asia, the Past and Present, the Old World and the New, are so blended and confounded, that it is impossible to sar which predominates. Another city so bizarre and so proturreque as Moscow does not exist. To call it Russian would be too narrow a distinction: it suggests the world.

Its position, near the imaginary line where one continent is merged into the other, accounts for this. The waters of the Moskya soek an Asia it Sea, yet its necreat ports are those of Central Europe. Its fibers of commerce branch eastward across the Tartar sheppes to Mongolia and China; routhward to Samerond and Bokhars, to Cashmero and Petsit; borthward to Another in more than tropic fire? of the Moekva, at the south-western extremity of the city, are Sparrow Hills, which, running due east and west, form a chord to the great winding curve of the river, and inclose the whole conthern portion of Moscow, which is built on the level bottom between it and their bases. These hills are steep and abrupt on the northern side, and though rising less than two hundred feet above the water, overtop every other elevation, far and near. Every stranger who wishes to see the panorama of Moccow should first mount the tower of Ivan Veliki, on the Kremlin and then make an excursion to the

The mansion was illuminated from the lower floor to the attic, and was a beautiful spectacle. An interesting circumstance connected with this illumination is related in regard to the candicettics which were used. They have been brought into requisition for a purpose similar to that of last night, on three previous cocasions: In 1785, when peace was declared; The Moskva, in passing through the city, divides it into two unequal parts, about three fourths occupying the porthern bank and one-fourths occupying the porthern bank and one-fourth the southern. The river is so totuous that it may be said to flow toward all points of the compare before reaching the Kremliu, whence its course is eastward toward the Oka. In the center, and sising directly from the water, is the isolated hill of the Kremliu, a natural mound, about a mile in circumference, and less than a hundred feet in height. On the southern side of the Moskva, at the south-wostern extremity of the city are character as before. Inside the outer bollevard, which embraces the business portion of the city, the houses are almost exclusively of brick, covered with stucco and painted yellow, light blue, or pale red. Outside of it, for many voiste, stretch the rows of private risidences, interspersed with gardenplots, while the outskirts are made up of the houses of the proper classes, one-stary cottages of boards or logs, gandily painted, as in the country villages. Many of the better dwellings are also of wood, which material is recommended both by its cheapness and comfort.—Stone is cearce and dear, and there does not seem to be sufficient to pave the effects properly. A shallow bed of small cobblestones, so lightly folled that it coon becomes unoven, joits the life out of you, even at this season, but in the apring it is said to be far worse. above a serment.

The coeffigation of 1812, though, with the exception of the Kitai Gorod or Obinese City, which wholly escaped, it left scarcely fifty houses standing, contributed very little to modernize the aspect of Moscow. A few of the principal streets were widened, and two concentric circles of boulevards introduced, in the restoration of the city, but most of the old streets and lause were robuilt on the same plats, and in much the same character as before.
